

KIDNOVATE

"Tiny fingers touched soft and rough, and discovered that making something 'mine' is the start of making something wonderful."

NEWSLETTER (April 22nd - April 27th)

Morning Magic & Thread Tales!

Over the past week, our little learners began each day with joyful morning circles filled with music, dance, and movement, setting a positive and energetic tone. Breakfast time became a warm, social experience as friends enjoyed meals together with light music in the background. We introduced our new theme, "Clothing Creations," where children explored different types of clothes through engaging videos and stories. With tales like Bob the Builder, they learned about community helpers and their meaningful roles in society. The week also included special Earth Day celebrations with storytelling and creative crafts like handprints and Earth-themed art, helping children connect with nature.

Tiny Designers, Big Discoveries!

This week was packed with sensory play and creativity. Our young designers crafted their own Mini Me figures, along with slippers, sashes, caps, jackets, and T-shirts, using art and fabric play to express their imagination. Children explored fabric textures — identifying what felt soft, rough, or hard — building their sensory vocabulary. Through firefighter handprints and discussions about doctors, chefs, and construction workers, they deepened their understanding of the world around them. Role-play stations like doctor sets, kitchen corners, and mechanic setups sparked collaboration, empathy, and real-world learning.

CLOTHING CREATION

"The bravest walk isn't on a big stage — it's a small child showing their own art and saying, 'I made this!'"

Runway to Reflection!

To bring “Clothing Creations” to life, children dove into pretend play, songs, and interactive activities all week. The highlight was our joyful fashion walk, where they proudly showcased their self-designed outfits with confidence and flair. Each day closed with a reflection circle, giving children space to share thoughts and experiences from their day, followed by a warm goodbye. It was truly a week brimming with learning, creativity, exploration, and fun!